Biography

Yentyl Williams, a dual national of the UK and Trinidad and Tobago, is Expert at the European Economic and Social Committee (EESC) for the green paper on the future of EU relations with the African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) countries. Yentyl is also Founder and President of the ACP Young Professionals Network, which bridges the gap between EU and ACP technical cooperation and young leaders in both regions. Prior to her work at the EESC, Yentyl was Regional Trade Research & Communications Assistant at the Technical Centre for Agriculture and Rural Cooperation (CTA), the only joint EU-ACP institution. She has also worked as an independent consultant pioneering research on the subject of 'TTIP: What implications for Africa?'; on competition policy and internet governance at Burson Marsteller; and on the Economic Partnership Agreements with the ACP states and the EU Overseas Countries and Territories at the Directorate General of Trade in the European Commission. Yentyl is a graduate of King's College London, Sciences Po Paris and post-graduate of the College of Europe, Bruges. She has researched, published and travelled widely in Europe, Africa and the Caribbean, and also in Asia and South America.
